This has long been recognized. More than thirty years ago Parodi and Mascazzini (1) published a method for the determination of zinc by adding an excess of ammonium acetate to a solution of its sulphate; this method was recommended for use in the analysis of zinc ores. In 1902 Edgar F. Smith (2) after expressing confidence that electrolytic methods would prove wholly satisfactory on application to natural products gives results of the determination of zinc in a pure blend, using a sodium acetate electrolyte, the zinc being present as sulphate. The introduction of the rotating anode with zinc solutions by Exner (3), greatly increasing the advantages of the electrolytic method has made an imperative demand for further...
