LES OEUVRES (7)

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 70 pages. Original publisher: Carlisle, PA: Strategic Studies Institute, U. S. Army War College, 2008 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)232572956 Subject: Twenty-first century -- Forecasts. Excerpt: . . . Observers who see the dominance of states in world politics as immutable reject the decline thesis. They dismiss the weakness of many states with the argument that most of these were never more than 1 quasi-states in the first place. Moreover, the contrast between states in Africa, for example, and the advanced post-industrial states of the developed world is so stark that assessments of the former seem to have little or no applicability to the latter. Consequently, arguments about the decline of the state tend to be dismissed - like reports of Mark Twains death - as somewhat premature. Certainly, it is too early to schedule a wake 2 for the sovereign-state system. The state remains the main construct for political allegiance and affiliation, the ostensible provider of security to its citizens, and the key organizing device for world politics. None of this is inconsistent with the notion that the Westphalian state system is in a long recession. States, having reached the zenith of their power in the totalitarian systems of the 20th century, are in a period of absolute decline. The challenges from contemporary globalization and other pressures are neither novel nor unique, but are more formidable than in the past - while the ability of states to respond effectively to these challenges is not what it was. In a sense, states are being overwhelmed by complexity, fragmentation, and demands that they are simply unable to meet. They are experiencing an unsettling diminution in their capacity to manage political, social, and economic problems that are increasingly interconnected, intractable, and volatile...
