Excerpt: . . . 9 tional 9 metric tons of plutonium, enough to make 2000 nuclear weapons, would be removed from such use and eliminated by conversion to MOX fuel. The MOX facility is a critical component of the Departments surplus plutonium consolidation efforts and is essential to the goal of transforming the complex. Our efforts at home are not enough, in and of themselves. We need cooperation from our international partners as well, and if we are to encourage responsible international actions, the United States must set the example. We have dramati-cally improved physical security of U. S. nuclear weapons and weapons-usable mate-rials in the years since the September 11 attacks. We have made substantial reduc-tions in our stockpile and made additional plutonium available for conversion into civilian reactor fuel. Additionally our complex transformation will further reduce the number of sites and locations where we store special nuclear materials, providing for improved...
