Woodhead Publishing Ltd, United Kingdom, 2008. Hardback. Condition: New. New.. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. This book attacks the often implicit and damaging assumption that `everyone is online and that `everyone is using online resources within the specified parameters of employers, government and national laws. This book summons a critical Web Studies, asking not only who is using particular applications, but also how and why. This remedial work is required. The concept and label of `Web 2.0 is part of a wide-ranging suite of assumptions that offer simple answers to difficult questions. The term captures a desire for online collaboration and the sharing of information, performed most visibly through blogs, podcasts and wikis. Other `products that capture the Web 2.0 ideology include Google Maps, Facebook, MySpace and Flickr. Within this framework, websites no long hold information but become a platform to connect applications with users. The business applications have gained the most attention - particularly content syndication - but there are also `political initiatives overlaying this project including open communication, the sharing of data and the deep linking of web architecture.
