Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Minutes of Proceedings of the Institution of Civil Engineers, Vol. 52: With Other Selected and Abstracted Papers; Session 1877-78 Part II These few general remarks will show how largely the engineer has been employed, and how much his labours have contributed to the development of the wealth and prosperity of every country in which they have been carried on. I will now proceed to matters of more personal interest to each member of the Institution. There is considerable individuality in the practice of most Of our members. Circumstances to a great extent control our operations. Early engagements or opportunities do much towards fixing a man s future career. Some men have been principally engaged in the construction of railways, others in hydraulic engineering, many in mechanical construction. Some have devoted their energies to the development of the electric telegraph others to gas -li ghting, to armour-plating, to naval architecture, or to artillery; while not a few may be considered as purely scientific men, investigating the strength of materials, the laws of motion, the phenomena of light and heat, and the thousand other questions which have a bearing on practical engineering.
