Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 22 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.1in. Excerpt from Funeral Oration The emblems of mourning that hang in deep and studied festoons around this sacred desk, the anxious and attentive gaze of so many silent eyes, and the solemn stillness that pervades these consecrated walls, all proclaim the sorrow that penetrates every heart in this vast assembly. The angel of death has been in our midst. He has struck in our high places. A great man has fallen, and we come together, on a day set apart and dedicated to his memory, to manifest our grief. Henry Clay is no more. In the ripeness of old age, but more crowned with honors and renown than he was blessed with lengthened years, he has been gathered to the fathers. He sleeps in the noiseless tomb, and we shall see him no more, forever, in the glory and the brightness of his long and shining career. And who will say that his departure - late as it was - is natural in the course of time and so much to be expected is not a national loss! Or friend or foe, who, in this hour of our sadness, can refuse to join in a parting tribute to the recollection of a patriot whose fame has reached the utmost borders of civilization, and whose imperishable name will be chronicled in all time to come, in the proudest annals of the Republic And now that he has passed to his great account, it is to dwell on such a man, and, in the hour of these funeral rites, to repeat the story of his deeds and recount some of the great actions that have distinguished and immortalized his life. The illustrious citizen whose loss we...
